Students will be expected to:

- Come to class prepared, ready to learn/work
- Grow throughout the course and show improvement (students are not expected to be at a high art level when they begin the course)
- Sit at a computer for two hours each day (though not always the norm)
- Work in groups periodically
 - Communicate well with teammates
- Use good time management
 - Maintain multiple projects within each week
 - Prioritize which work should be completed first
 - Manage unstructured time independently
- Participate in project critiques after all big projects
 - Give and accept constructive feedback with peers
 - Present work created and explain the process used (solo and in groups)
 - Demonstrate good listening skills
- Solve challenging problems, often experiencing failure and learning from it
- Follow the district technology plan, including appropriate use of technology and cell phones
- Maintain professionalism
 - Communicate effectively orally and in writing
 - Apply appropriate social skills
 - Engage in appropriate conversation
 - Wear appropriate attire
 - Maintain a clean and safe work environment
- Build a portfolio of learning on a website platform
- Be an active member and participant of Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA)
